[illegible] in the election of the Executive Committee [illegible] the ballot as [illegible] to the Union shall be known. This is very well so far as it goes; but as the negroes constitute a large proportion of the Republican party in this county, and in the State comprise nearly half of this party, they should have offices in proportion to their numbers. Heretofore they have had nothing in this State, and now only a few of them are put in the honorable and lucrative position of County Executive Committeeman. As representation according to numbers is one of the professed principles of the Republican party, as we have seen stated in their party organs in this county, let them put it in practice by selecting from among their sable brethern candidates for some of the offices. Let them put at least four negroes on their ticket for Legislators. Let the negroes assert their rights and demand representation upon the ticket in proportion to their strength in the party.

We have several times in these columns called attention to the fact, that although the negroes in several States constitute a majority of the Republican party, yet in the selection of candidates they were always chosen from the white minority, and also stated that the negroes were given the right of the elective franchise merely to be used as voting tools to keep in power the Republican party, and their treatment of the colored element has proved it.

In Kentucky, where the negro Republicans largely outnumber the white Republicans, candidates for all offices are selected from the white portion, and in the State Convention, only a few days ago, when a proposition was intodnced to give the negroes the share of offices to which their numbers entitled them it was quickly voted down. As they are treated in Kentucky they are treated in nearly all the States, the Northern States especially.

Notwithstanding the denunciation of General Grant by many of the leading Republican papers throughout the land, and by such men as Gov. Gratz Brown, of Missouri, Sennators Schurz, Sumner, Trumbull and Tipton, his renomination by the National Republican Convention, which meets in Philadelphia, in June, is almost a settled fact. Six States—Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Minnesota, New Hampshire and Wisconsin—already have instructed their delegates to cast their ballots for him.

It is said by those Republicans who profess to know, that the choice of General Grant is not based upon his fitness for the position, but upon his availability.

The Rhode Island Republican Convention on Wednesday passed resolutions in favor of the renomination of both Grant and Colfax, and in the usual style, giving much honor and glory to the Radical party for the many blessings (?) it has conferred upon the country.

THE AMERICAN REPLY TO GREAT BRITAIN.—It appears from a cable report of a reply of Mr. Gladstone to an inquiry of Mr. Disraeli that the reply of Mr. Fish to the note of Lord Granville, touching the claims for consequential damages, calls upon England to submit to the Geneva tribunal the question whether the claims shall be admitted and discussed by that board. The attitude which the British government will assume upon this phase of the question will positively determine whether the Geneva arbitration will continue or be abandoned. Mr. Beverly Johnson, in his late speech before the Legislature of Baltimore, [illegible] the opinion that the decision of Lord Cairns, [illegible] the opinion of the British government, [illegible] to refer the question to the Geneva tribunal, [illegible] would be willing [illegible] to submit the question to that tribunal. [illegible] Weather [illegible] Friday morning, however, the river being again quite free of ice, it was expected, as a matter of course, that the boat would make her regular trip to Philadelphia, as advertised; as at both times many passengers and several wagon loads of freight were at the landing awaiting her arrival. Much to the surprise and disappointment of those in waiting, no boat appeared, and great was their indignation when the fact leaked out that the only excuse for not running the boat on that day was, that she could make no money on that trip in consequence of its not being generally known that navigation had reopened, and that the officers were determined that their boat should remain tied at the wharf, sooner than make a single trip without profit. For the same reason we had no boat to-day, but we are encouraged to believe that there will be a boat run up to Philadelphia on Monday, provided, of course, the officers of company receive a guarantee that the trip will pay.

Our citizens believing the mismanagement of these steamers to be the fault of their officers, have drawn up a petition to be presented to the directors of the Company, asking the removal of the officers of the Reybold, from the captain down. That there is pressing need of improvement both in the boats on this line and in their management, is painfully apparent to all who are compelled to travel on this route. The two steamers of this line are the Perry and the Major Reybold. The new and beautiful little steamer Perry which was twenty-five years ago running on Long Island Sound, is now the old, slow, dilapitated and unsafe boat on the line between Salem and Philadelphia. The new, elegant and swift steamer Major Reybold, which was placed on this route some twenty years since is the one now running. That she is still sound and perfectly safe, I believe, and that she can be run with equal speed to any boat on the river is without a doubt; but that she is sadly deficient in her arrangements for the comfort and pleasure of passengers is practically demonstrated to all who travel on her. The Captains of these boats, Prior and Robeson, have grown old in the service. Twenty years ago these men, as well as the boats they commanded, were fully up with the times. These Captains have been faithful to their posts. Much too faithful. An occasional season taken for recreation and travelling might have proven beneficial to them, and an advantage to the company. They perhaps would have learned that this is an age of progress and improvement, and that the standard of 1852 retrogaded in regular ratio since that time is not just the thing for the spirit of 1872. I would suggest the Captains of our boats be, if possible, awakened from their Rip-Van-Winkle sleep of twenty years; grant them a few days leave of absence; send them out in company with their President, with the request that they travel with their eyes open, in order that they may discover, if possible, some of the changes which have occurred during their sleep; and ascertain what improvements, if any, have been made in steamboats and steam navigation since the time of Robert Fulton, when he run the first steamer on the Hudson river, sixty-five years ago. It would be well for them to proceed to New York, not for the purpose of visiting those Floating Palaces which ply on the Hudson river and Long Island Sound, but rather to inspect some of the numerous smaller steamers and lines corresponding in importance with our own route between Salem and Philadelphia. If, however, long force of habit prevents them from going beyond the boundaries of the Delaware river, they may be able to learn something by visiting some of the snug little steamers running from Philadelphia: for instance, the John A. Warner and Twilight running to Burlington and Bristol, and the Felton which runs to Wilmington.

I would ask them to compare the appointments and accommodations for passengers on board the Warner with those of the Reybold and Perry, and ascertain if the John A. Warner is making money for her owners. If she is, I would then like the opinion of her captain: whether he could substitute the Perry in place of the Warner and still make money on that route. In short, if there is now running a successful line of passenger steamers in this country where such steamers as the Reybold and Perry could be placed and made to pay running expenses. If so I would like to hear of it. Whether or not the Salem line of steamers is entitled [illegible] for the accommodation of the [illegible] steam vessels to go aboard [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Our Paper Money.

On the 31st of March, 1871, the House of Representatives adopted a resolution ... on the Secretary of the Treasury ... an estimate of the number of ... of paper that would be required to ... the national bank circulation; also ... number of pounds made up into ... fractional currency, and bonds, ... the cost thereof. The report of the ... in response to this inquiry has ... been made public. It states that "it ... require 5,603,224 sheets of paper ... the present national bank circulation, which, at 18 pounds per 1,000 ... the weight heretofore used, would ... 100,858 pounds. The average cost of ... paper used for the circulation of national banks is 78 cents per pound," or a ... cost of $78,669.24. The number of ... of paper manufactured into legal ... or greenback notes is given as ... 206,537 pounds, costing $175,341 45; ... manufactured into fractional currency, ... 316,176 pounds, costing $243,406.94; ... manufactured into bonds, 110,873 pounds, ... costing $91,387.63; manufactured into ... internal revenue stamps, 78,062 pounds, ... costing $36,689.14. The account then ... stands:

	Pounds.	Cost.
National bank notes.....	100,858	$78,669.24
Greenbacks.....	206,539	174,341 45
Fractional currency.....	316,176	243,406.94
Bonds.....	110,873	91,387.63
Internal revenue stamps.	78,062	36,689.14
Total.....	812,508	$625,494.40

But this is not all. There is a reserve of paper, to be manufactured into greenbacks, fractional currency, bonds, and revenue stamps, amounting to 257,183 lbs., costing $204,812.36; so that the grand total of paper used or to be used in our paper money is 1,069,791 pounds, costing $830,306.76. It will give the reader some idea of the amazing bulk of our paper money, bonds, &c. to know that 535 tons of paper are required for its production. Could the outlay for engraving, printing-ink, coloring matter, press-work, labor, salaries, and other items of preparation be ascertained the grand aggregate would be enormous.
